place where the legislator gets to spend a lot of time. When meetings are not in your office, you are mostly in meetings outside your office. You should not be far from the groups that supported you the most. I would never want my neighbors and colleagues at the Jewish Center in Manhattan Beach to have any reason to say now that we've elected him, we don't see him. Although it will be difficult, I have committed to attend their board meeting at 8 p.m. on Monday, 12 January, although that was the day I would attend my first regular session of the New York State Assembly as a member of that body. Larry still works for me, and now as a member of the General Staff, and although the speed that led frightened me, I knew You won't have any problem at all getting me from Albany down to Manhattan Beach in a lot of time. Partisanship did not look bitter in 1981 as it is now, nationally or in Albany. For reasons I explained in pages 62 through 64 tales from the sausage factory, the Assembly actually passed a mine bill on that first day of the session, sparking a round of applause for me from all over the House, Democrats and Republicans. beyond that, mutual respect and sometimes affection clearly crossed party lines. Not so the first Monday night, but on the next Ten Monday nights or so, Dugan, Weinstein, Paul Vigiano, Tony Insitute, George Madison and I would go out for dinner together at the Italian Café on Central Avenue near North Allen Street. Maybe we were a little joking about the fact that George was a Republican, but he certainly didn't count as an issue. I had a different problem there. Despite the size and appetite of Heinchio, I, not him, finished everyone's dinner. I've earned a pound and a half, like an hour. I had to stop going there when I showed up at a reception a few months later, Joe, the owner, accused me of not liking his food. I explained: Joe - I love your food. That's why I can't come here anymore. Also in the Assembly Hall, brilliant and eloquent Republican members such as Dominic DiCarlo and Jack Flanagan received tremendous respect from Democrats. I was by no means the only Democrat who occasionally voted with Jack, a high-ranking Republican, instead of Leonard Staveske, president, at the Education Committee meetings. (Admittedly, this particular situation was an aberration, in that Stapsky, a very brilliant and well-meaning legislator, and Flanagan stood at opposite ends of the spectrum with regard to personal skills, which Flanagan had abundantly.) Speaker Stanley Fink did not kindly honor the Democrats, even under these circumstances.) So I left the room at the end of that wonderful first meeting of my bonhomme-filled meetings. Larry dropped me at the door of the synagogue, and i went upstairs to the conference room, where two factions, each consisting of about 20 nearly 90-year-old Jewish men, all of whom enthusiastically supported my election, were about to kill each other because of a vague issue of the church's management. I sat there very quietly, remembering a copy of the certificate announcement created by my best friend from middle school, Glenn Ross. Actual commercial, if you don't remember it or didn't see it, was a pair of attractive young blond twins arguing the advantages of Mint Sertz. Cert is a breathmint, said one. Cert is a candy mint, said the other. They soon resolved their dispute and generously agreed that they were both. In Glenn's version, an elderly Jewish man claims, strongly, Soits is Brett Mint! The other old man, Wade, Soits is a Kennedy mint! Again: No Sa Brett Mint Forth: No Sa Kennedy Mint! Screaming: No'sa' Mint! No sa Mint! Last. Last.
